HUGE CUNARD LINER SINKS FERRY; SHIP FORCED INTO PORT

Repairs Will Force 870 Passengers To Change Ships

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Cunard liner Mauretania, out-bound for Europe with 870 passengers aboard, collided with a steel car ferry in the bay early here today, sending the ferry and twenty-eight freight cars to the bottom.

After the accident the Mauretania proceeded to Quarantine where an examination revealed two holes, each about four by ten feet, in the port side of her bow a trifle below her water line. Officials declared the liner would return to her pier for repairs, and added that it might be necessary to place the ship in dry dock. In all likelihood the passengers will have to disembark.

The Mauretania, under command of Captain S. G. S. McNeill, had passed the Statue of Liberty when the ferry loomed out of the dark. The prow of the liner struck the stern of the car float squarely, sinking it immediately.

That no lives were lost is attributed to the quick thinking of the tug-boat crew who cut the lines lashing the float to the ferry immediately.

The long deck-hand aboard the ferry sensed his peril when he felt the craft sinking and leaped to the tug thereby saving his life.

Many of the 870 passengers aboard the liner were brought to the decks from their cabins by the shock of the collision, but it was apparent that the huge vessel was in no danger.

Captain McNeill brought the Mauretania to a quick stop by throwing his engines into reverse and sent out a lifeboat which made for the tug, but the tug's captain assured the officer in charge that all aboard both the tug and ferry were accounted for.

Although Captain McNeill reported to the Brooklyn navy yard that he had hit a "54's" ferry across our bow off Stapleton with no lights," members of the crew of the tugboat state both the tug and ferry were carrying lights.

MAURITON, O., Nov. 28.—Burial arrangements were being made today for the body of Russell Shonk, 21, of Morral a Marion County village. Shonk was instantly killed when he fell under the wheels of an Erie passenger train locomotive at the Kenton Avenue grade crossing here Wednesday night.

It was Marion's second auto-train fatality in less than twenty hours. Fearing that his brother, Clay, who was driving, would be unable to beat the approaching train, Russell leaped out of the auto in which they were riding, falling in the path of the train.

Clay was not hurt, although the train hit the rear of the auto. Lester Klingel, 22, was fatally hurt earlier in the day when his roadster plunged into a standing freight train south of Marion. His brother is in City Hospital with a broken right leg.

DENVER, Nov. 28.—A man whose description tallies closely, police assert, with that of the youth who wrecked and robbed the Portland Livery of the Union Pacific near Cheyenne, Wyo., Monday night, was arrested for investigation here early today.

He gave his name as Clifford Stevenson, 26, of Denver. He carried a .45 calibre pistol in his pocket when arrested, police said. He denied any connection with the train robbery.

Consul-General Simonovsky, foreign office representative at Khabarovsk, has been appointed official Soviet delegate to negotiate with the Chinese.

According to reports here, emissaries of Marshal Chang have already arrived at Khabarovsk for the purpose of taking up the negotiations. Khabarovsk is about 400 miles north of Vladivostok, on the juncture of the Amur and Sungari Rivers.

The reappointment of M. Yemichanov as manager of the C. E. R., with N. B. Elsmont, of the trade and commerce bureau, as assistant, was announced by Russia.

Although the announcement referred only to an agreement reached with the Mukden government, reports were current today that Marshal Chang's negotiations had been completely authorized by the Nanking government.

While the apparent victorious outcome of the Sino-Russ negotiations here today as a moral as well as military victory, there were many who were skeptical of the sincerity of the Chinese. They feared the Chinese would cloud the results of the Khabarovsk conference by trickery.

The Pravda, the Moscow newspaper organ of the central committee of the Russian Communist party pointed out with pride that the Red army could disarm the entire Chinese frontier forces in Manchuria if necessary.

The ultimatum further provided that as soon as the Chinese had complied with that part of the agreement relating to the reinstatement of Soviet officials of the railroad, representatives of both China and Russia should meet at Khabarovsk for the purpose of discussing technical details connected with carrying out the rest of the agreement.

Benjamin Yoakum, nationally known railroad executive and financier, died at his home here today as a result of a heart attack. Yoakum was stricken on Monday and he was unable to recover from the attack. He was 70.

Yoakum, a Texan by birth, was known far and wide as one of America's greatest empire builders. He started his career as a roddman on a surveying gang and is said to have constructed more miles of railroad than any other single individual in the world.

He was born on a farm in Limestone County, Texas, the son of Dr. Franklin Yoakum, physician and educator, a native of east Tennessee who moved to Texas in the forties and became president of Cumberland Presbyterian College, then at Larissa, now Trinity University, at Tuhucana, Texas. After the college was closed by the Civil War, Dr. Yoakum engaged in farming and the practice of his profession.

Benjamin Yoakum's ambition from boyhood was railroad building. His first job was as a freight clerk in the Southern Pacific offices in Houston. Later he became a roadman and took part in construction of the International and Great Northern Railroad from Jackson, Tex. to Palestine, Tex. Having served an apprenticeship in operation, he entered the office of the general passenger agent, was transferred to Atlanta, Ga., in charge of Southeastern passenger business, and later was made division freight agent, with headquarters at San Antonio.

Independent broadcasters already are pressing a demand that the commission revoke broadcasting licenses of the radio corporation, which is a part owner of the large national broadcasting chain, on the ground that the act requires revocation for violation of an anti-trust law.

The Delaware decision was rendered in the radio tube suit, in which independent manufacturers assailed the corporation's requirement that licensed manufacturers buy tubes from it. Judge Morris' order was entered following appeals to the supreme court. Legal experts are said to differ as to whether the matter can be appealed again. The commission thus far has taken no action, apparently not regarding the Morris order as a "final judgment" within the meaning of the radio act. The commission can act only upon a "final judgment."

Most of the better grade of industrial and railroad dividend-paying stocks are selling at attractive prices in relation to current earnings and dividends. The corporations behind these stocks will show excellent earnings for 1929 as a whole, making large additions to surplus funds in addition to paying dividends. There are exceptions to this rule. Any one of a dozen stock market experts could easily name a score or more of active stocks selling entirely too high—in their judgment.

Hesitancy in the market at present must therefore be based largely on genuine doubts as to whether the corporations like U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey and other industrial stalwarts can continue to earn money at the current rate. If it is confidently demonstrated that they can, stock prices must assuredly rally from the present levels; if a long season of poor business lies directly ahead, the stock market is in for a corresponding period of dullness and reaction.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—George A. McManus, on trial for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, nationally known Broadway gambler, enjoyed a holiday today away from the gloomy confines of the old criminal courts building, next door to the tombs. There being no session of court, McManus visited his mother in the Bronx, where he will have his Thanksgiving Day dinner. He planned to take in the Carnegie Tech-N. Y. U. football game this afternoon.

McManus does not appear to be much worried about the outcome of the trial. He exudes confidence. He is at liberty on $50,000 bail.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The long drawn-out hostilities between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Siberia-Manchurian border have been brought to an end by Chinese acceptance of Soviet peace terms which demanded restoration of Russian directors on the Chinese Eastern Railway. Soviet officials stated today.

Acting Foreign Minister Litvinoff announced that he had cabled Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, accepting the Manchurian governor's compliance with Soviet peace terms.

The terms agreed upon, according to Litvinoff, provided a complete restoration of status quo in the management of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The Mukden government, according to Litvinoff, agreed to the restoration of the Peking-Mukden agreement of 1924 regarding the railroad's management.

The ultimatum further provided that as soon as the Chinese had complied with that part of the agreement relating to the reinstatement of Soviet officials of the railroad, representatives of both China and Russia should meet at Khabarovsk for the purpose of discussing technical details connected with carrying out the rest of the agreement.

OBERLIN WINS LONG WAR AGAINST BAN

OBERLIN, O., Nov. 28.—Ten years of perseverance has at last won for Oberlin College students permission to dance until midnight.

The original ban ruled no dancing at all. Then the ban was lifted in a modified way ten years ago when the students were allowed to dance until 9:40 p. m., on Saturday nights. Last year the faculty grew more lenient and ruled that the students could dance until 11 p. m. But the students still wanted more. So now the faculty has let up again and students may "on with the dance" until midnight.

THREE GET $41,000 IN EASY MONEY PLOT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—An "easy money" scheme, which turned out to be no better than the rest of them, today landed three men in jail charged with the theft of more than $41,000 from the Goff-Kirby Coal Co., over a five-year period. The men were a triumvirate in a conspiracy, according to police, whereby they charged gasoline to the coal company and resold it to their own profit. Two of the men were garage employees of the coal company. The third was a gasoline station attendant. Police stated that two of the men admitted their part in the conspiracy, saying "we had to get along somehow and it was easy money." The third denied his participation in the plot.

NORTHERN OHIO IS BACK OF PRESIDENT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—Carrying a keynote of optimism a message of assurance was to be sent to President Hoover today that more than $100,000,000 will be put to work in 1930 expansion programs and public improvements in this industrial empire of northern Ohio.

Plans, calling for this stupendous expenditure, were revealed here by 200 northern Ohio civil and business leaders who gathered here yesterday for a regional survey into the state of business and to pool their ideas in support of President Hoover's plea that the nation's business be kept on a steady keel to tide over disturbances which may have resulted from the stock market crash.

The survey, as taken from representatives from fifty-one cities and seventeen counties in northern Ohio disclosed that industry and political divisions of the state are eager to pour money, time, and effort into the Hoover prosperity movement.

All of the delegates to the conference went back to their homes today freshened with the command to "get something started." Projects already pledged to the prosperity movement by officials from such cities as Akron, Canton, Youngstown and others, will reach the towering total of $100,000,000.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

What Price LAZY APPETITE

"Dear, are you not glad you followed my suggestion when I urged you to try S.S.S. for your lost appetite?"

HAVE you an indifference or loathing for food, or do you really enjoy mealtime?

Fads and fancies come and go. We must be reasonable. You can't afford to wreck your body by "killing" an appetite given you by Nature to nourish your body.

You must really enjoy your meals and assimilate them to restore the waste of the body. Don't expect a strong, sturdy body and a keen mind to carry on if you do not enjoy your food. It just can't be done.

Friends, happiness and business success may depend on a keen appetite. Many thousands have turned to S.S.S. when the appetite signaled danger. It is a time-tested remedy... purely vegetable. Easy to assimilate. Pleasant to take. It will do much to restore the

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE TESTIMONY OF SCRIPTURE—Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me.—John 5:39.

OUR DIPLOMATIC CASUALTIES

William Phillips resigned recently as American minister to Canada, at the age of 51 and after 24 years in the foreign service. A fortnight before John Van Antwerp MacMurray resigned as minister to China, at the age of 48, after 22 years' service. The resignation of Ambassador Fletcher, at Rome, at the age of 56 and after 27 years in diplomatic life, was gazetted in June. All three of these outstanding officials were career men. The years of experienced service they were still capable of giving the country has been lost to it.

A good many years may have to elapse before the United States has a permanent foreign service that is in fact permanent. A beginning has been made; but a service hardly deserves to be called permanent from which resignations occur so frequently as they have in the American foreign service since the first of the year. We have no reserves of grizzled veterans, who know world politics from A to Z, with whom we can fill the most important posts abroad; and it looks as if we shall not have until our national attitude toward the diplomatic service radically changes.

Abroad, a diplomat is "somebody." A definite social rank attaches to his post, which is recognized by his fellow citizens; and he can look forward to a title or some other worth while recognition of work ably performed. We have no titles to offer. When an ambassador returns from his post, we extend to him the courtesy of the port; but after that he receives less attention from his democratic countrymen than a congressman. This absence of indirect compensations combines with shabby congressional treatment in the matter of direct compensations and allowances to make the foreign service, above a certain point, unattractive to outstanding men.

The result is that outside of the special field of China, where conditions demand specially trained men even more urgently than they do in most other countries, we are not keeping and using the men the nation has footed the bill to educate. Great Britain does the thing differently. Sir Esme Howard is retiring at the age limit; and it will be noted that the most important post in Great Britain's diplomatic service is to be filled by a career man. This country may not want a permanent foreign service; but if it does, that's the way to get one.

The practice of jailing addicts to habit-forming drugs is as barbarous as the treatment accorded the mentally diseased, a few generations ago; and it is to be hoped that the country will wake up to that fact sooner than it did to the cruelty to which the insane were subjected for centuries.

"China revolt ended." Good news, if true; but the Chinese have been fighting in a circle for so long that it is doubtful if they have discovered a way of squaring it.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—And now the talkies come along with the announcement that they have signed up no less a personage than—Santa Claus!

The old man has had a pretty tough time of it in Christmases gone and forgotten. He used to stand on wind-swept corners, stamping, mumbling and shivering behind a cascade of discouraged hempen whickers, and soiled, ill-fitting, red canton-flannel, tinkling an inadequate dinner bell in the service of the Salvation Army.

Then the Army threw him out and he drifted across to the big shops, where amid a shoreless waste of dolls and blocks and mechanical toys he sweated in his winter woollens.

No more shivery corners or stifling top departments for the old fellow. From now on he'll sit at ease in his own snug quarters at the North Pole, pulling a long, black stogie, while he discants, on the air, of Yuletide in song and story.

BACKGROUND A-PLENTY

Many of the Brethren of Broadway's Amperage have backgrounds of more than passing interest. There's Wallace Ford, "head man" in "The Nut Farm," a play brought from Chicago. Left an orphan at the age of two, Wally was reared by a Liverpool fishmonger and his wife. At 13 he was chore boy on a ranch in Alberta, Canada. Tiring of the monotony of the life, he tramped to Winnipeg, where he got a job wiping engines. That didn't appeal to him for any length of time and he signed up as delivery clerk for a fashionable pill roller of the town. One blue and gold spring morning he dropped a bottle of castor oil on the top step of the druggist's wealthiest customer and an hour later found himself "at liberty." Next he donned the uniform of a theater usher and becoming stage-struck hooked up as super with a sidewalk stock company, where he learned the gentle art of make-up and the jargon of back-stage. Then he did what they all do. He headed for the Big Town. Finding Belasco, Shubert, Erlanger, Erwin, Billy Brady, Hammerstein and Ziegfeld with all the talent on hand they could possibly use, he whiled away the time waiting for an opening by washing dishes in a vegetarian Nose Bag. "Seventeen" was produced with Wally in the cast and from then on, big time, big noise, heap big success.

A DREAM?

A news item tells us that Joe Graziano, Italian immigrant, out of an old pot, an ancient cook stove and a dream, has grown an invention which may put him in a class with the wealthy and the great. He is said to have discovered way to create a vapor from fuel oil that can be used instead of gasoline and give three times gasoline's mileage. Fuel oil can be had for 7 cents a gallon.

One remembers young Watts, sitting in his mother's kitchen, watching the kettle boil—and getting the idea of the steam engine.

HARD TO WHIP

There is a lot of toughness in the fibre of the human. British babies are two pounds heavier on the average than they were 10 years ago. They are reported healthier. Fewer die at birth. Despite war, hard times and poverty, and all the things from which England has suffered and is suffering, the human being isn't whipped.

ROLLING TO RIO

An outstanding improvement in the Western Hemisphere which many now alive will live to see, will be a good road from North to South America. Today there is a completed road from Winnipeg, Canada, to Monterey, Mexico. It is said that next year the highway will be finished to the Mexican capital. The day will come when the road will be pushed south through Central America to the countries of South America. When the day comes that folks can drive back and forth between North and South America we shall all get along better.

RUSSIAN DRINKERS

Russia has been having an anti-alcoholic week put on by the Anti-Alcoholic society. For some reason the last days of the crusade were marked by an unusual number of arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. In Moscow there are 58 vodka stores, 145 beer halls, and 286 wine shops. Russians in a campaign to cut down drinking, apparently act much like Americans. They find a new desire to drink as soon as pressure is brought to stop it. Funny about folks.

Who's Who and Timely Views

By Arthur J. Weaver

Governor of Nebraska

(Arthur J. Weaver was born at Falls City, Neb., Nov. 18, 1873. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. Admitted to the bar in 1896, he practiced law at Falls City until 1904. Since 1905 he has engaged in fruit growing, grain and stock raising. He has been the president of several concerns. In 1899 he was a member of the Nebraska house of representatives. He was mayor of Falls City in 1915, and chairman of the Republican state convention in 1924. He became governor of Nebraska last January.

THE known policies of President Hoover as to the necessity of completing at an early date the Mississippi valley system; because of the effects of the Panama canal on the region, are heartening to the west.

The issue could not be ignored, when the whole nation knows that it costs twice as much to ship products of the middle west to either coast as it costs to ship from one coast to the other. The barrier now existing can only be removed by giving the west an outlet to the sea.

The fact that for more than 100 years the waterway, the railway and the highway have all survived as dependable means for transportation, shows conclusively that all are not only useful, but indispensable.

The development of our inland waterways is imperative for the future growth and prosperity of both the agriculture and industry of the middle west, since the shift of the trade currents from the interior to the ocean, resulting from the operation of the Panama canal. This situation must now be equalized by developing the great natural Mississippi system of waterways.

This will restore the sectional equation. It will insure the future of the great agricultural region which produces America's raw materials, and will give to our people a greater and a just share of the national prosperity. The vast commerce of this region, as well as the potentiality of such a rich area, makes it imperative that it be placed on an equality as to transportation facilities and rates with other parts of the national domain.

A system of inland waterways in the Mississippi valley will save the farmers on all the grain produced in this area, approximately five cents to 12 cents a bushel. This would mean something on the 100,000,000 bushels of wheat produced annually in Kansas, on the vast output of the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota.

Who doubts that this would help solve our agricultural problem?

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THERE is an art in Christmas giving which comes with a little time and thought expended in choosing your gifts. I often think that so many people merely rush about, picking up things here and there, and distributing them indiscriminately. This is such a pity, for the ideal gift should not only be suited to the receiver, but should also express the interest of the giver.

"It is not what we give, but what we share—For the gift without the giver is bare."

So said one of our best poets—and it is well to remember this little verse. Intimate feminine friends need not be a serious problem, for here one can give the luxurious bath and dressing table accessories so dear to every woman and often a little too extravagant for personal purchase.

Even the finer face powders, delicately scented, make charming presents. There are artistically designed powder jars, desirable on the boudoir vanity because of their high decorative quality. Bath salts can be had in price ranging from the reasonable to the very expensive. French, Oriental and domestic—lightly or heavily scented—in every possible variety to suit every taste. These bath salts are generally put up in attractive vase-like containers, which, when empty, are still decorative assets. Together with a companionate bath, they make a beautiful ensemble.

There are quite a few manufacturers who, around Christmas time, offer a special selection of exquisite richly embroidered, lace sachets, which can carry the favorite scent of the person to receive them.

Even the most practical of accessories to daily living—soap—can be transformed into a pleasing gift if properly selected. There are, at present, innumerable soaps in a varying degree of costliness which most women would be glad to possess. Then, too, there are delightful washing preparations, beauty grains and such that really come in the category of beauty preparations. Imported soaps of costly caliber come in boxes of three, a half dozen, or twelve. There are English, French and even Oriental imported soaps to please the most discriminating.

The advantage of intimate giving of this nature is that you combine the useful with the beautiful. While some women like to receive elaborate impractical gifts which delight them merely for the moment, most of them would really prefer (if they were given the choice) something which adds pleasure to everybody living.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Politicians never did believe that the Republican old guard liked President Hoover; that is to say, politically. Their opinion was that the old guard swallowed him because it had to, but did not relish him.

Be that as it may, it appears that President Hoover did not like the old guard! at any rate, not the old guardsmen in the senate, where the situation has been very annoying to the White House ever since last April.

Otherwise how account for the recent appearance in the senate of a young guard—consisting of seeders from the old guard—which later body always hitherto has considered itself as including all the Republican regulars, so called to distinguish them from the insurgent Republicans or Progressives.

To be sure, the young guardsmen claim to be regular, too, but specify that they are Hoover regulars, or the Hoover bloc, as some describe them. Not all, but most of them are senators in their first terms; so they are also referred to as freshmen. The Democrats, however, speak of them as young Turks—a designation which, of all others, is perhaps likeliest to stick if for no other reason than that the freshmen resent it.

How account, indeed, for this new group except on the ground of the effervescence of its loyalty to President Hoover.

And yet there are cynical folk who intimate that the young Turks are not especially Hooveristic; that they are sore on the old guardsmen, as bad managers, rather than violently devoted to the White House; that all they care about is which side their own bread is buttered on.

Certainly such solons as Senators Deneen, Glenn, Goff, Metcalf, Oddie Robinson of Indiana and Waterman look alike to ultra-conservative a platoon ever to be consistently depended on by the president, who has a few rather progressive streaks. Senator McNary, apparently destined to be the young Turkish leader, probably will prove more dependable as Senators Allen, Sackett, Steiwer, Thomas of Idaho and Vandenberg—

very, very mild progressives.

Senator Fess, although a born old guardman, has an overwhelming pro-White House complex, too—hard to say which has the stronger grip on him.

Senator Capper sounds dubious. He already has implied a slur on President Hoover's series of conferences to preserve prosperity, expressing a "hope" that a thought will be spared for agriculture's prosperity, as well as the industries.

Sensors Goldsborough, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert (who may as well change his name to Herbert right now and get it over with, for that's the way it always is printed), Keen, McCulloch, Patterson, Townsend and Wolcott are too new to risk predictions on, but several of them have the mien of decided old guardsmen.

And, anyway, what good can it do President Hoover to have the young Turks at his beck and call, however faithful they may be to him, with the Progressive-Democratic coalition outnumbering both them and the old guard put together?

It is interesting, but that is about all it amounts to.

The G. O. P. side of the senate is now split three ways:

The old guard, 16; the young Turks, 24; the Progressives, 14.

But the Progressive flock, for the present, with the Democrats—39 of the latter, or a total of 54 for the coalition, counting Senator Shipstead, the lone Farmer-Laborite, who properly belongs to the combination—versus a total of 40 young Turks and old guardsmen, if they were united.

And the session opened with 56 nominal Republicans in the senate.

There were seven out-and-out Progressives among them, but of these seven only two were definitely off the Hoover reservation; the rest were more or less prepared to play ball if things had gone to their liking.

And now look at the lineup! No wonder the young Turks complain of mismanagement. For that matter, the Democrats are split, too, if it ever comes to a showdown. In reality there are six parties in the senate, counting Farmer-Laborite Shipstead as one of them—and he ought to be, for, really there is more solidarity in his his group than in any of the others.

MENU HINT

Creamed Potatoes and Bacon Combination Salad
Apple Peach Custard Pie
Coffee

Here is a menu with very little meat and using up leftover potatoes. The pie is hearty, so you do not need many different dishes. This menu may be served at noon or as an evening supper.

Today's Recipes

Creamed Potatoes and Bacon—One cup finely chopped cooked bacon, two cups potatoes, cut in dice, three tablespoons cream, three tablespoons flour, three-fourths cup water, one tablespoon minced parsley, one tablespoon minced green pepper, one-half tablespoon minced celery, salt and pepper. Add the chopped pepper, celery and parsley to the bacon drippings and cook slowly for a few minutes. Stir in the flour and then add all the liquid. Cook until thick and smooth. Add bacon and seasonings, then the cold potatoes. Cover and reheat over hot water or a low fire. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and paprika. Serve very hot.

Apple Peach Custard Pie—Two eggs, one pint milk, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon cornstarch, one teaspoon butter. Beat eggs, milk and dissolved cornstarch. Add sugar, cook until quite thick and add butter. Have pie shells previously baked and half fill them with apple-sauce made by steaming in a tightly covered pan four large apples with just enough water to cook them, and adding sugar and salt to taste. Put apples through a sieve when done, and add two tablespoons cream. Over this pour the custard and slice peaches or any other ripe or canned fruit on top. Cover with whipped cream or beaten egg whites. This makes two pies.

Combination Salad—Two cups shredded cabbage, two stalks celery, diced, one tomato, one teaspoon onion juice, one teaspoon catsup. Pare and cut tomato in small pieces. Mix all ingredients together with mayonnaise.

Suggestions

Meringues
Here are two recipes for meringues which add the final touch of deliciousness to the "op'n faced" pie of cream, lemon, etc.: Three egg whites, four tablespoons sugar, one-half cup shredded coconut. Beat the whites until stiff. Add the sugar and beat until creamy. Add the lemon extract and one-half the coconut. Roughly pile on top the filling. Sprinkle with the remaining coconut and bake in a very slow oven for 12 minutes. Cool and serve.

Two egg whites, stiffly beaten; four tablespoons confectioner's sugar. Add the sugar to the egg whites and beat until creamy. Bake in a slow oven for 12 minutes. Cool and serve.

SMART BOY

"Now, Charles," said the teacher, "if your father can do a piece of work in one hour and your mother can do it in one hour, how long would it take both of them to do it?"

"Three hours," answered Charles "counting the time they would waste in arguing."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Nutrition and Longevity.

Even among the scientists there are those who believe that aside from a slight variation, the life span is an inherited characteristic; that if you come from long-lived ancestors, you will live (barring accidents— to a good old age; but if the reverse is true, nothing you can do will materially lengthen your life. Longevity, in other words, they believe to be an inherited characteristic.

But if, with care, a machine—for instance, an auto-oiled and fueled in good condition, can be kept running years longer than one of a similar make not kept in good condition, shouldn't the same reasoning apply to the human machine? Of course, there is no doubt that one can inherit tougher body cells that will better wear and tear, but just as abuse will counteract that characteristic, so will proper care accentuate it, and in the case of inherited weak cells, overcome any inherited tendency to short life.

Take this matter of fueling the human machine. It has long been recognized that inadequate and wrong diets over any period may lower resistance so that diseases may follow and life be shortened. And it certainly is reasonable to believe that the right diet can do the reverse. Now we have some scientific data supporting the premise. Dr. H. C. Sherman, of Columbia university, a famous expert in nutrition, carried out some studies on two groups of some 400 rats of the same heredity. Both groups lived under the same conditions with the exception of the diet. One group had a nutritionally adequate diet; that is, one which kept them normal in every way, and they lived their natural span of life. The diet consisted of one-sixth dry milk powder and five-sixths whole ground wheat. The other group had a little different diet, and they lived 10 per cent longer. What was this miracle-working little difference? Simply a larger proportion of milk. They received two-sixths dry milk powder and four-sixths ground whole wheat.

This experiment is of great significance. It shows that even an adequate diet can be greatly improved. In this case, it shows again the very valuable properties of milk. And the results of the Sherman research will undoubtedly apply to humans. Do your children have at least 1½ pints (better 1 quart) of milk every day? And you at least 1 pint? If you don't like milk, how about cream soups (really milk), cheese, junket, malted milk, buttermilk, etcetera? You don't have to have it as straight milk. Don't, however, take so much that it crowds out other needed foods that it has been proved the human family needs. Nursing mothers and pregnant women, knowing it is such a good food, are apt to take too much. A quart should be the limit for them.

For those who are interested, we have an article on Balanced Diet and an article on the Diet during Pregnancy and Nursing. See column rules for obtaining these.

Mrs. H.—Among the causes of blood in the urine (hematuria) are an acute inflammation of the bladder, or elsewhere in the urinary tract; it might come from injury through stones, or from ulcerations or tumors. You should go to a specialist who can make an examination of the bladder and urethra. They have special instruments for this.

Until you can see your doctor, drink liberally of water and fruit juices, and eat very lightly, and be as quiet as possible. Better stay in bed.

If you are interested, we have a pamphlet on Kidney and Bladder Disorders which you may have. See column rules.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. If she considers your questions of general interest, they will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 2 cents in coin for each; for the pamphlets on "Reducing and Gaining," "The Kidney and Its Excretions" and the "Hygiene of Women," 10 cents in coin (for each) and fully self-addressed stamped envelope, must be enclosed. (These charges are to cover cost of printing and handling.) Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I wish every married couple, happy and unhappy, could see George Arliss' play, "Disraeli." He has played it on the stage and the screen version is just out. It portrays marriage that is a real union of souls. A wife who has her husband's interest so intensely at heart that she suffers the agony of a crushed finger rather than bother him on the eve of an important speech.

And a husband who adored his wife and so appreciated her love and care of him that when she is too ill to accompany him to a brilliant reception given in his honor, which he must attend, and the doctor says he will send him a wire if there is any change for the worse and he can be home in a few hours, he exclaims: "Mary is my home. If she dies I will have no home."

Happy married people will be happier for seeing it, and those who are not, may be influenced to try to make a success of their unions.

After seeing the picture I read this letter:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am coming to you again to see if you can help me. I'm a married woman. I've been going with a married man. We've been going together for the last five years. I know he liked me before, but now he has met a girl. They are crazy about each other. He tells me he doesn't go with her, but he lies to me. His wife knows about him."

"Virginia Lee, I love him so much I don't know what to do. I've got him on my mind night and day. Please help me, Virginia Lee, and tell me what to do, because I'm not happy with my husband. That's why I got attached to him. Can you tell me what the other girl has done to him to make him like her? She is another."

"This is what I call fun," said Biffer, who was bubbling over with spirits. "Dad is so afraid I am going to do something terrible that he hardly ever lets me go off by myself, and as for mother—she fuses over me so that I can scarcely get out of her sight. They forget that I am almost a grown beetle now, or I will be in a few months, anyway."

"Hey, there! Who is that ahead of us?"

"I don't see anyone," said Peter, but he had no sooner spoken than he did catch sight of a strange figure standing motionless by the side of the path. At first he had taken it for a stone. As they came nearer Peter saw, to his surprise, that it was a great, dark beetle that was standing bolt upright on its hind legs, with its front legs clasped over its head.

"Who is he?" he asked Biffer in a low tone. "And what on earth is he doing?"

"That is exactly what he is doing," said Peter, whispering back. "We don't put our arms over our heads just like he is doing, but humans say our prayers, too."

"Oh, we don't all need to do it, my country," said Biffer, in the same low tone, "and I am glad we don't, for I know my clay would ache."

By this time they were up to Praying Beetle and were looking at his hats in hand, and on Peter could not be certain, but he thought Biffer looked a little frightened.

a little younger than I am. Do you think that makes any difference? I am young and have no children. Lots of other men are crazy about me. They ask me to go out, but I don't do anything like that.

"Please, Virginia Lee, do you think I'm foolish to send you a letter like this? Please tell me what to do and what you think about my case. I'm waiting for your answer."

"LONESOME PAULINE," No, I don't think you're foolish to send me such a letter. I think I probably relieved you at the time which is always a good thing. But don't you see, dear, that a real man who was worthy of your love or the love of any fine woman, wouldn't be untrue to his wife? The very fact that he makes love to you, a married woman, shows that he regards the affair lightly, and expects you to do the same. He is a will'o the wisp of a butterfly, flitting here and there wherever a brighter flower attracts him. Probably, underneath the surface, he really cares about his wife and only satisfies his male egotism by flirting with this one and that.

You see, my dear, the fact that you are married, that you owe you allegiance to one man and that you are not true to your trust and you promises to a love, honor and cherish makes you a victim of any man who has a roving eye. They think they can make love to you and leave you. That you are that kind of a woman.

Many married women have to much time on their hands and no children, so they get dissatisfied and eventually attracted to other men whom they think would make them happy. This may not be your case but it may be. You can't do anything to win the man back. He is not worth winning, for one thing and you have no right to him, for another.

FRAMED
by Phil

"The song is ended but the melody lingers on."

Vivid memories of a brilliant platoon career will be left behind when that rampant ghost of Harry "Red" Grange, none other than Christian Keener "Red" Cagle, of the U. S. Military Academy, rows away his football togs late Saturday afternoon, having consummated his four-year football career at West Point.

Just like his sorrel-thatched Illinois predecessor, Cagle will be acclaimed one of the great All-American footballers of all time. Cagle's last appearance in an Army uniform will be against the undefeated riders of Notre Dame.

Although "Red" will be gone his memory will linger on in association with the names of other Army stars of by-gone days, Oliphant, Marillat, McEwan, Daly, Garisch, Bunker and his former teammate, "Light Horse" Harry Wilson.

Cagle, captain of this year's Army team, first craved the headlines in 1926 as "Harry Wilson's running mate and is now rated as one of the most capable broken field runners and forward blockers that ever graced the Army line-up.

When his football make-up was esconced among the moth balls other sports immediately engaged the attention of Cagle, who is a versatile athlete and has never been found out of the pink of condition.

His endurance and ability to combat the fiercest opposition as a regular in the backfield was shown in the 21 to 21 contest with Navy at Chicago several years ago. This game, incidentally, firmly established his reputation as a corner.

His efforts continued to bear fruit in 1927 and 1928. As a matter of fact Cagle was chosen in the backfield on the All-American mythical team last season. The present season is consequently something of an anti-climax for the red-head but there are many who believe he will again receive All-American recognition.

Cagle's fine gridiron exploits again this fall are noteworthy in view of the fact he has been an outstanding star for three straight years. What we mean to get at, in our groping way, is that opposing lineemen "lay" for him and considerably handicap his efforts to get away for these long runs for which he is noted. To offset this evil, Cagle has resorted more frequently this season to forward passes and by his deadly tosses has been able to circumvent the opposition's plans almost as well.

A ruling that eighth graders of schools having small enrollments have the same right to be candidates for the high school basketball team as upper classmen, has been handed down by Commissioner Townsend, of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, it is learned.

Providing they are sufficiently good to make the team, the eighth graders, under terms of the ruling, are entitled to play on the high school team without losing their right to four more years of competition when they enter high school.

This ruling entitles the more talented basketball players to five years of high school competition, providing, however, such students have been properly certified by the local school superintendent to the state association when they are still in their eighth grade of school.

This decision is particularly agreeable to Caesar Creek Twp. High School, where this fall most of the candidates for the boys' and girls' court teams are being drawn from the freshman, sophomore, classes and the eighth grade. It is declared by school officials that several of the eighth graders may make the high school first teams.

The old wooden gymnasium which has been a part of the athletic equipment at Wittenberg College since the coming of the present century is being torn down following the recent dedication of the Lutheran school's new $400,000 physical education building. The old structure will live in memory among Wittenbergers, however, as the gym which was the home of the undefeated Lutheran teams of 1918, 1919 and 1920.

BOWERSVILLE AND ROSS DIVIDE TWO

Bowersville and Ross Twp. High School boys' and girls' basketball teams divided a double-header on the Bowersville floor Wednesday night.

For the first time in the school's history the Bowersville girls' sextet defeated Ross feminine tossers by a margin of 29 to 22 in the preliminary. Ross boys made amends, however, by winning their game 31 to 28 after a close struggle.

Bowersville teams appear on the Jamestown floor Friday, December 6.

SAFETY FIRST

CHARDON, O., Nov. 28.—Geauga County has started a strenuous campaign to protect its school children.

The new school code requires that school buses shall be marked front and rear and that vehicles going in the same direction as the bus must stop when the bus stops and not start again until the bus resumes.

JUNIOR "SAFETY PATROL" REORGANIZED HERE

WITH re-organization of a junior "Safety Patrol" under the direction of Xenia public and parochial school officials, steps are being taken to make street crossing intersections safer for school children.

The patrol was revived this fall by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, with the cooperation of Mayor Karl R. Babb and Louis Hammerie, city school superintendent.

Pictured in the above photo, in addition to the three officials who have been the moving spirits in the plan, are nine school children who have been designated to act as junior safety cops. Six of the boys are displaying traffic signs with which members of the patrol have been equipped for their crossing duty.

The signs caution motorists to drive carefully at intersections in the vicinity of schools in order to avoid accidents.

The second picture shows Chas. Babb, son of Mayor Babb, and one of the appointed junior officers, stationed at the Whiteman-Church St. intersection, giving an idea how the plan operates. The patrol was started a year ago but later permitted to be abandoned. Such a safety patrol has been maintained ever since that time however, at St. Brigid School, according to the Rev. David Powers. The dangerous "Five Points," formed by the intersection of Second and West Sts., and Cincinnati Ave. have been guarded by two school boys at all times when children were leaving or entering the building.

JAMESTOWN SPLITS DUEL AT BELLBROOK

A basketball double-header between the boys' and girls' court teams of Jamestown and Bellbrook High Schools on the Bellbrook floor Wednesday night resulted in a 35 to 12 victory for Bellbrook girls in the preliminary and an impressive 14 to 11 victory for Jamestown boys. The score of the boys' game was tied at 6 to 6 at a half.

XENIAN HURT WHEN AUTO LEAVES ROAD AND LANDS IN DITCH

Charles McFarland, member of the firm of Purdon and McFarland, auto agency at 50 E. Main St., was painfully injured when the auto in which he was riding with David L. Purdon skidded off the Jamestown Pike, slid down a nine-foot embankment and turned over in a ditch Wednesday morning.

The accident occurred on the Johnson hill, half a mile from Jamestown and three autos, being driven up that hill, skidded on the slippery highway and fell down embankments within a space of an hour and a half Wednesday morning.

McFarland suffered excruciating pain but an X-ray examination made at the offices of Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, where he was taken, showed that his neck was not broken, as it was first believed. Later he was removed to McClellan Hospital, this city, where a further examination was made to determine the extent of his injuries. He was resting comfortably Thursday, hospital attaches said. Purdon was not injured.

Late Wednesday morning an unidentified man received a leg injury and cuts on one hand when the car in which he was riding went down an embankment near the same point. Shortly afterward a woman driving from Dayton to Chillicothe escaped injury when her machine skidded and turned over on the opposite side of the road on the hill.

INVENTOR OF ODD SHOES SEES WALK OVER ENGLISH CHANNEL

Happy Hazzard on his water shoes

CANTON, O., Nov. 28.—He's so fond of walking that he's going to start on a little stroll across the English channel.

J. (Happy) Hazzard has had a hankering for walking across the English channel for many years. Some folks told him he couldn't do it, because walking on water was not being done these days.

"I'll bet I can," Hazzard told them. "It's all a question of wearing the right kind of shoes." And so Hazzard at his home here has perfected the strangest pair of shoes a man ever wore.

They're called Happy Hazzard's water shoes and they are guaranteed to enable a man to walk on water with the sprightliness of walking on land.

Hazzard knows they are magic shoes because he has taken strolls on the surface of many streams in this section. He walks up and down the stream sometimes at a brisk pace and sometimes very leisurely—if he wants to enjoy the scenery.

Hazzard has been working on these water shoes for five years and he has them so perfected now that he is confident they will permit him to stroll over the choppy waves of the channel that separate England from France.

The water shoes look something like large footballs when they are inflated. Yes, they're full of air to make them buoyant.

A pair of shoes is fastened on top of the cushions and when Hazzard wants to go out for a water stroll he laces the shoes tightly on his feet, uses a bicycle pump to inflate them, picks up a staff, something like the staff a ski jumper uses, only it's equipped with an inflated cushion instead of a sharp

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects. They start the bile and help overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

point, and goes forth to stroll along the surface of the creek. Hazzard is having his water shoes patented. If his channel stroll is successful, then he's going to allow his magic shoes to be sold.

What will they be good for? "Why fishermen can sneak up on a fish without all the disturbance a boat makes." And for aquatic sports they will unfold a world of amusement, he suggests.

"I imagine I'll be walking across the channel sometime in June," he said. "As long as the waves are with me I know I can walk, but if they happen to be against me I don't know what will happen."

in the Michigan stadium. That was the skeleton of the experience but the best part of it was meeting these Michigan folk in person and talking to them about the things that interest all of us.

When I got a helpless and polite audience in front of me, of course I talked about pirates and buried treasure, as is customary with me. But the Michigan folk are versatile in their interests, and they made me happy by coming around after the talk and asking to see and handle my pieces of eight and my lone doubloon, which I have collected while acting as a connoisseur of sunken galleons and buried loot. That was a fine start.

In New York live some of the best people in the world. But in New York even the best people in the world are a little shy about making new friends. One sees so many people every day. And one has learned that not all of these people are suitable for friendships. There are many other reasons why the New Yorker is a little less than cordial when circumstance or business forces him to bow and formally salute a new acquaintance.

In Michigan, as in other western states, it is different. The human qualities have a better opportunity to assert themselves. The change of atmosphere was a tonic for me. I'm sure I met a hundred people in Michigan with whom I'd like to be much better acquainted. They are the kind of folk you like to have

living next door on a wide street, with lawns and separate garages. I imagine you don't have to hire entertainers to make them happy when you invite them to your home for an evening. And I'm sure you don't have to have a bartender to mix the drinks for them. They seem to be reasonably happy on water and home-made coffee and tea.

my alma mater, so I can say without egotism that it is one big school that retains personality, quality and something of a college atmosphere. I don't know where you can find better people for a university than Dr. J. S. Reeves, professor of political science; Dr. W. W. Bishop, librarian; Dr. Randolph G. Adams, librarian at the Clements library; Prof. John L. Brumm of the department of journalism and a dozen others whom I was lucky enough to meet. These are the modern university people, who don't hide in their whiskers, talk Latin in their sleep, or look wonderingly and disapprovingly out upon the wide world outside the campus. They have scholarship and dignity where and when these qualities are needed, and at other times and places they can forget these things and be Michiganders still.

The American Legion of Ohio sent out a reminder Thursday that expiration of the time for filing World War adjusted compensation applications, available to all World War veterans, has been set for January 1, 1930.

With the possibility that congress will refuse further extensions of time after that date every American Legion post has been asked to canvass its membership and ex-service men in general in this regard, advising them of the benefits that await application.

The Legion said 27,000 Ohio veterans eligible for the compensation have not filed applications.

RIDGEWAY IS GIVEN STAY OF EXECUTION UNTIL DECEMBER 2

A stay of execution of the sentence of two and one-half years in the Atlanta penitentiary, recently imposed upon Charles M. Ridgeway, 62, Xenia, on his guilty plea to a charge of violating the narcotic laws, will remain in effect until January 2, it is announced by Federal Judge Robert R. Nevin at Dayton.

The local man was scheduled to be taken to Atlanta last Monday in the custody of Mont Spillman, deputy U. S. marshal, who took fourteen other prisoners to the penitentiary.

Signed statements from three physicians declaring incarceration of Ridgeway in the penitentiary would cause his death, because he is in a weakened condition, were presented to the court by Attorney C. L. Darlington, Xenia, defense counsel.

The accused forbade his attorney to produce the affidavit at the time of his arraignment on the narcotic charge last week, it is said.

In imposing the two and one-half year penitentiary sentence Judge Nevin had asserted he took the drugist's advanced age into consideration but asserted Ridgeway is himself an incurable addict.

SNEEZING MAY BE ABOLISHED SOON

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—Experiments are under way here by members of the civic biology and botany classes of Dr. William A. Matheny, Ohio University, to find a sure fire method of preventing sneezing.

Assuming that there are several billion germs released every time an explosive sneeze enters the nostrils of the sufferer, the students are earnestly delving into preventative methods.

The old method of pressing the tip of the nose or the side of the lip have been discarded by the classes as being unreliable. There must be some sure way, they believe.

COTTON STOCKINGS
ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Author of "THE FLAT TIRE"
Copyright, 1929, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:
Rosalie March, seventeen, works at the hosiery counter of a department store, a position she secured through the kindness of Kenessa Dubarry, an actress, who took pity on her when Rosalie's mother died. Rosalie is adored by her landlady, Mother Murphy, and little Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie. Alberto Martino, the store detective, threatens Rosalie with arrest when he catches her with a pair of silk stockings she has taken until payday. He prevails upon her to hide some suitcases in her room. Roy Clarke Andrews, nephew of the store owner, asks Rosalie to marry him. Martino's gang kidnaps Roy, and when Rosalie threatens to expose him, Martino is mysteriously shot. The police arrive.

Of course, Rosalie is accused of the murder, and is taken to the station to be questioned.

Rosalie does not know who shot Martino.

After questioning, Rosalie is put in charge of Aunt Bessie, at the women's bureau.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

Aunt Bessie awakened Rosalie the next morning. She held a steaming cup of hot coffee in her hand.

"Take this, dear—if you don't feel like eating any breakfast, it'll help you keep up."

Through a dark room, up some steps and into a wire screened enclosure Rosalie was led by an officer a few minutes later. It was eight o'clock in the morning.

Then bright lights were turned on her and she could not see beyond. In the room before her a score of city detectives were hidden by the "stick up screen." It was the place where all that pass through the hands of the Philadelphia police are taken and "given the once over." The screen is used so that criminals cannot recognize the detectives.

Rosalie was told to hold her head up straight—to turn to walk. Mechanically, sick with fear, she did as she was told. There were none there that had seen her before. It was a new face to them—and one of the most innocent looking any of them had ever seen.

"Too bad—a kid like that," a veteran said, as she went out the door. And a younger laughed, cynically.

"Them's the kids you gotta look out for, Barney."

From the "stick up screen" Rosalie was taken to the rogues' gallery. She did not resist while they took her finger prints.

Then she was led into a room to be photographed and measured. The photographer sat her in a large wooden chair and turned her head to the side.

"Here, read that while I'm takin' you. It'll do you good."

It was a sign on the wall a few feet away. For a minute Rosalie could not see. Then her eyes cleared and she saw that it was a picture of a man standing in front of the electric chair. Behind him stood a priest, a policeman and another man. Below in large letters, over an inch high, she read:

"YOU CAN'T WIN."

Below that was another picture. It was of an old, prison-garbed man, and she strained her eyes to read:

"Here is Old Uncle Jim, known only as 'Old' since he entered prison at the age of 20. Now 70. Fifty years of living death."

"Tragic proof that 'YOU CAN'T WIN.' 'CRIME DOES NOT PAY.'"

Rosalie drew a shuddering breath. It brought her danger to her more realistically than anything had before. But she did not feel like a criminal. She felt like a little girl—all alone in a world that was full of misery and heartache—and believed that she would rather die.

She sat with a large number pinned across her dress and faced the sharp face of the camera man while he made a front view. In a little while her picture would be in the rogues' gallery. She, Rosalie March, was a murderess. She had actually taken a man's life. She must have.

Her eye caught a newspaper lying on the floor near. Headlines screamed at her:

"GIRL 17 ADMITS HATE MURDER."

And below she read with a sinking heart in a smaller headline:

"ROY CLARKE ANDREWS BELIEVED DEAD."

The photographer reached over and handed the paper to her.

"All over the front page this morning, aren't you?"

There was her picture. Together with the headlines it seemed to take up the whole page. In large black type that started up at her she read:

"I hate him. Of course I killed him."

"Beautiful Rosalie March, 17 years old, confessed with the above words, to the murder of Alberto, employee of the Boggs and Clarke department store at — Race Street last night at 8 o'clock." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Mildred Harris, motion picture player and former wife of Charles Chaplin, has filed suit for divorce in Hollywood from Everett Terrence MacGovern, Florida real estate man and prominent amateur golfer. Her motion picture career is blamed.

"He's mean," she says. "He doesn't like my playing in pictures and I've been in pictures since I was nine years old. Besides he wanted me to live in the East and I was reared here. "It was just a case of talking different languages. I mean, motion pictures are my life work and I can't let even my husband interfere. I mean our marriage just wouldn't click."

Miss Harris alleged that MacGovern deserted her without cause on October 30, 1926. They were married in April, 1924. She asks for

When she sued for divorce from Chaplin some years ago Miss Harris claimed that the comedian's "film genius" caused him to be moody and to inflict mental cruelties upon her.

Grace's four-installment article, "The Flying Squadron of Death," which ran in the Saturday Evening Post not so long ago, is the latest literary lion in blouse New York.

Grace was an army flyer during the war and found it hard to settle down to hum-drum existence after the big push. He joined a flying circus, which eventually found its way to Hollywood. When it left, it was without Dick Grace, who had joined the film colony.

He soon became known as a double for film actors who would attempt anything, specializing in airplane work. He was generally accepted in the colony and earned a meagre wage, but managed to get along.

His article described the most daring air feats imaginable—stunt crashes for some of the biggest air pictures made, including "Lilac Time," "Wings" and others. In these he would be engaged by contract to "crack-up" several planes in the same picture, and do each in a way that it could be photographed well for the picture.

Grace broke his neck down in Texas doing a stunt for "Wings," but even that didn't kill him. He

CHEST DRIVE STILL SHORT

CAMPAIGN ENDS BUT FUND NEEDS $1,500
TO COMPLETE GOAL

Contribution Will Be Welcomed Until Next Tuesday

Wanted: Fifteen hundred dollars.

With active solicitation at an end after an eight-day campaign a shortage of $1,500 exists and Xenia's second annual Community Fund campaign to raise $10,- 000 is face to face with failure unless the deficit
can be reduced by voluntary subscriptions, chest
leaders reported Thursday.

Announcement was made that a final canvass of the city Wednesday was not productive
of the results anticipated
although $8,500 is in sight.

Voluntary contributions will continue to be welcomed until next Tuesday night when the chest executive committee holds its final meeting to hear a financial report and fix a date for election of officers and permanently organize the local fund organization for next year.

Just now, however, fund leaders are asking this question: where are the fifteen hundred dollars that 10 workers have been paying and seek with since the beginning of the 1929 fund campaign?

In whose pockets is it concealed,
awaiting a more convenient hour,
or, worse, the time when the cries
of the sick and needy families
cease to be heard through the pleas
of the army of volunteer workers?

"If there is a man or woman in Xenia who can give a dollar to the Community Fund, and who has not yet been solicited, we want him or her to call chest headquarters at City Hall," one leader declared Thursday.

TWO PERISH IN HOTEL BLAZE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Movements to tighten restrictions regulating the flight of airplanes over densely populated areas and to make more rigid the requirements for a pilot's license had been given added strength today by the Metropolitan Area's two latest aerial mishaps.

Headed by officials of the department of commerce, investigations were launched today into the crashing of America's largest land plane, the Fokker F-32, into the side of a house at Calle Plave, L.
I. in which M. P. Boggs, and Harry McDonald, mechanic, miraculously escaped death.

Declaring that they have definitely ascertained that Boggs took the huge plane off Roosevelt field with one engine out of order and not running, officials today said
they were investigating a report that the motors of the plane
fouled because they were run too long at idling speed before the take-off.

The crash of the F-32 was the second serious accident of the day
on Long Island, James Pisanini 19-year-old pilot having lost his life
when his plane crashed on the roof of a building at Westbury. It is believed that lack of skill and not engine trouble, was the cause of the youthful pilot's death.

M'MANUS ENJOYS TRIAL HOLIDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—George
A. McManus, on trial for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, nationally known Broadway gambler, enjoyed a holiday today away from the gloomy confines of the old criminal courts building, next door to the tombs. There being no session of court, McManus visited his mother in the Bronx, where he will have Thanksgiving Day dinner. He planned to take in the Carnegie Tech-N. Y. U. football game this afternoon.

McManus does not appear to be much worried about the outcome of the trial. He exudes confidence. He is at liberty on $50,000 bail.

Old - Time Thanksgiving In Order At White House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A customary, old-fashioned Thanksgiving was in order at the White House today. This included a turkey dinner with all the trimmings and attendance of services at church.
The President and Mrs. Hoover were joined for the holiday
by their son Allan, who came home from Harvard for the week-end. Their other son, Herbert Jr., and his family
were on the west coast.
The White House family
forewent the Irving St. Quaker meeting house where they usually worship in favor of the Metropolitan M. E. Church.

Union services were held there with Bishop McDowell officiating.
On the presidential table tonight will be a brace of wild turkeys, shot in nearby Virginia by Larry Richey, of the White House secretariat, and William M. Mooney, Washington's postmaster. Six other turkeys, sent by well-wishers
from various sections of the country, were distributed among members of the staff.
Aside from church and a possible motor ride in the country, President and Mrs. Hoover had no other plans for the day.

PERMANENT BAR FOR VARE PLANNED FOR SENATE NEXT WEEK

Believe Foes Will Win
By Closer Vote Next Time

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A determined effort will be made to permanently bar Senator-Elect William S. Vare (R) of Pennsylvania, from the senate next week,
in spite of his demand for a recount in thirty-one counties which went Democratic in his 1926 election, it was learned today.

There were numerous indications that Vare will be denied his seat
finally when the vote is taken, although the result undoubtedly will be closer than when he was denied his oath in March 1927. The Vare forces however claimed victory, asserting their polls showed fifty-
one senators—a clear majority—favoring seating the Pennsylvanian.

The Vare opposition, led by insurgents and Democrats, will seek to end the case next week by a final vote on the Norris resolution, declaring the Pennsylvanian not entitled to a seat in the senate.
This resolution would declare Vare's election void because of the expenditure of $800,000 in his behalf in the preceding primary.

"Vare hasn't a chance," said
Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas,
a leader of the opposition. "The senate will decide the case next week, in my opinion, and it will deny a seat to him. After that Mr. Vare will have only an academic interest in what happens to the seat he sought."

The Vare forces will fight an immediate decision, arguing for a postponement until the senate elections committee can file a report on the contest being waged by William B. Wilson, Democrat, over the official decision in the 1926
election. Wilson has claimed Vare's election was secured by fraud and corruption and therefore the result set aside by the senate and himself (Wilson) declared elected. Few senators anticipate such action by the senate
but Vare will insist that the senate
await the committee's report.

Vare will lead this battle in person, according to reliable reports. He will come to Washington, even though his left side is partially paralyzed and he has difficulty in walking and speaking.
The senate long ago gave him permission to go upon the floor and to speak in debate. He will take advantage of that privilege.

The Pennsylvanian has given the elections committee something to think about, meanwhile, by demanding a recount in thirty-one counties which gave Wilson majorities. He has insisted on this recount chiefly because his senate foes are trying to "throw out" about 150,000 votes accredited to him on election boards, on the ground of technical fraud and irregularities. Vare would like to show by a recount in Wilson counties that the same technicalities and irregularities existed in cities carried by his opponent.

If the recount disclosed such conditions Wilson's contest would collapse. His only hope to win a seat in the senate is based upon the senate ignoring the official result, throwing out tens of thousands of Vare votes and approving every vote given Wilson in the official returns. In the opinion of veteran senate attaches, this result would approach the miraculous.

AN AVIATION TEA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—A new wrinkle for Washington's society—an aviation tea.
Senora Fevora Julia is giving it tomorrow at the Hotel Ambasador for members of the foreign embassies and legations. It will sponsor the organization of a flying club for diplomats.
Capt. Roy Fonke, of the Royal British Flying Service, will give the air enthusiasts instructions and flight tests.

MARKET SETTLES AS REACTION TO RALLY FROM PRICE BREAK

Many Better Grade
Stocks Selling At Bargains

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—All financial and speculative markets are closed today in observance of the Thanksgiving festival. As an aid to the clearing up of disorganized brokerage house records, the stock exchange and other security exchanges will remain closed until next Monday. Banks, clearing houses, commodity exchange, wholesale and retail concerns will take down the shutters and reopen as usual tomorrow.

Following a long-established precedent, the stock market settled back to a lower level of prices
this week, as a sort of secondary reaction to the rally from the October-November break. Though industrial stocks on the average recorded their low price for the year
on November 13, there has been a continuous filtration of both inactive and active stocks to lower prices than anything reported in the severest decline ever experienced in the American security markets.

The recovery was based on three important factors: the covering of shorts by the "big bears," who had been allowed to roam wildly over the whole board in the dark port buying; by the bankers and insiders; investment buying by both institutional and private investors under the conviction that stocks were selling below real values, even allowing for a moderate shrinkage in business and net earnings next year.

Having weathered the storm of distress liquidation and the severest readjustments in the shortest time on record, the stock market
today is in a peculiar position.

Most of the better grade of industrial and railroad dividend-payers are selling at attractive prices
in relation to current earnings and dividends. The corporations behind these stocks will show excellent earnings for 1929 as a whole, making large additions to surplus funds in addition to paying liberal dividends. There are exceptions to this rule. Any one of a dozen stock market experts could easily name
a score or more of active stocks selling entirely too high—in their judgment.

Hesitancy in the market at present must therefore be based largely on genuine doubts as to whether the corporations like U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey and other industrial stalwarts can continue to earn money at the current rate. If it is confidently demonstrated that they can, stock prices must assuredly rally from the present levels; if a long season of poor business lies directly ahead, the stock market is in for a corresponding period of dullness and reaction.

FUTURE OF FEDERAL RADIO COMMISSION TO BE DETERMINED

Body Faces Double Attack; Power Ends
December 31.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The fate of the Federal Radio Commission and the power of the federal government to regulate the country's vast broadcasting system will be decided by congress and the supreme court before Jan.
1, it appeared today.

With its life expiring on December 31, unless congress acts, and the supreme court preparing to hear the "WGY" case involving the commission's power to revoke licenses, the commission must face a double-barreled attack in the next thirty days.

Rep. White (R) of Maine, chairman of the house committee on commerce, has announced he will propose the extension of the life
of the commission for one year,
pending a permanent decision by congress on the question of federal regulation. Senator Dill (D) of Washington is expected to propose a similar bill in the senate.

The fact that congress must act quickly to preserve the commission opens the way for opponents to attempt to defeat enactment of legislation through filibustering methods.

Many members of congress have complained bitterly of the commission's reallocation plans, but it is doubtful whether there will be an organized attempt to wipe
it out of existence.

The government, in a brief filed in the supreme court, makes a plea for a reversal of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, which held that the commission could not force the General Electric Company's "WGY" station at Schenectady, N. Y., to divide time with an Oakland, Calif., station. The electric company contended the commission attempted to deprive it of a property right.

"The claim of a property right
can not be sustained without holding the radio act unconstitutional,"
the government declares in its brief, emphasizing the importance of the case.

"The power of congress with respect to the operation of radio stations is necessarily as great as its power over privately owned structures in or over navigable waters,"
the government brief continues.
"Interstate navigable waters furnish a strong analogy to the medium known as the ether."

Broadcasting is interstate commerce and therefore falls under the congressional power to regulate this commerce, the government holds.

In addition to fighting for its life, the radio commission is facing a troublesome question as a result of the decision of Federal Judge Morris in Delaware in holding the radio corporation in America violated the Clayton anti-trust act.

Independent broadcasters already are pressing a demand that the commission revoke broadcasting licenses of the radio corporation, which is a part owner of the large national broadcasting chain,
on the ground that the act requires revocation for violation of an anti-trust law.

The Delaware decision was rendered in the radio tube suit, in which independent manufacturers assailed the corporation's requirement that licensed manufacturers buy tubes from it. Judge Morris' order was entered following appeals to the supreme court. Legal experts are said to differ as to whether the matter can be appealed again. The commission thus far has taken no action, apparently not regarding the Morris order as a "final judgment" within the meaning of the radio act. The commission can act only upon a
"final judgment."

GIRLS ALOFT AFTER RECORD

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT,
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—Soaring
3,000 feet over this airport shortly before sunrise today, Bobby Trout and Elinor Smith, girl refueling record seekers, signalled for a refueelling contact after they had been in the air nineteen hours.
The ground crew sent aloft 180 gallons of gasoline, four gallons of oil and Thanksgiving Day breakfast.

"Cowboy" R. C. Warren replaced
Paul Whittier, millionaire sportsman backer, as pilot of the refuelling plane. Whittier was called away on business.

First Thanksgiving—a Real Job for Him

His first Thanksgiving turkey is proving a real task for this young man to carve. But he is ambitious, like most of his fellows of the coming generation.

BENJAMIN YOAKUM, RAILROAD HEAD AND FINANCIER, IS DEAD

"Empire Builder" Is Victim of Heart Attack

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Benjamin F. Yoakum, nationally known railroad executive and financier,
died at his home here today as a result of a heart attack. Yoakum was stricken on Monday and because of his advanced age was unable to recover from the attack.
He was 70.

Yoakum, a Texan by birth, was known far and wide as one of America's greatest empire builders. He started his career as a roadman on a surveying gang and is said to have constructed more miles of railroad than any other single individual in the world.

He was born on a farm in Limestone County, Texas, the son of Dr. Franklin Yoakum, physician and educator, a native of east Tennessee who moved to Texas
in the forties and became president of Cumberland Presbyterian College, then at Larissa, now Trinity University, at Tuhucena, Texas.
After the college was closed by the Civil War, Dr. Yoakum engaged in farming and the practice of his profession.

Benjamin Yoakum's ambition from boyhood was railroading. His first job was as a freight clerk in the Southern Pacific offices in Houston. Later he became a road man and took part in construction of the International and Great Northern Railroad from Jacksonville to Palestine, Tex. Having served an apprenticeship in operation, he entered the office of the general passenger agent, was transferred to Atlanta, Ga., in charge of Southeastern passenger business, and later was made division freight agent, with headquarters at San Antonio.

CONNAR SLATED FOR WISDA'S POSITION

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Albert T. Connar, Republican, a member of the Muskingum County board of commissioners today
seemed destined to succeed Richard T. Wisda, Democrat as state director of public works. Wisda's term expires January 2. Connar conferred with Governor Myers V.
Cooper who will appoint Wisda's successor.

Plans included the meeting
of the liner by a flight of
planes and a destroyer, which
will escort the ship up the bay
past Governor's Island, where
from Ft. William, the national salute of twenty-one guns will
be given.

Military honors will be ren-

CHINESE ACCEPT PEACE TERMS TO END RUSSIAN BORDER FIGHT

MOSCOW, Nov. 28.—The long draw-out hostilities between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Siberia-Manchurian border have been brought to an end by Chinese acceptance of Soviet peace terms which demanded restoration of Russian directors on the Chinese Eastern Railway, Soviet officials stated today.

Acting Foreign Minister Litvin-
off announced that he had cabled Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, accepting the Manchurian governor's compliance with Soviet peace terms.

The terms agreed upon, according to Litvinoff, provided a complete restoration of status quo in the management of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The Mukden government, according to Litvinoff, agreed to the restitution of the Peking-Mukden agreement of 1924 regarding the railroad's management.

The ultimatum further provided that as soon as the Chinese had complied with that part of the agreement relating to the reinstat-ment of Soviet officials of the railroad, representatives of both China
and Russia should meet at Khabarovsk for the purpose of discussing technical details connected with carrying out the rest of the agreement.

Consul-General Simonovsky, foreign office representative at Khabarovsk, has been appointed official Soviet delegate to negotiate with the Chinese.

According to reports here, emissaries of Marshal Chang have already arrived at Khabarovsk for the purpose of taking up the negotiations. Khabarovsk is about 400 miles north of Vladivostok, on the junction of the Amur and Sungari Rivers.

PLAN HONORS FOR DEAD

All Quiet On Eastern Front As Bodies Of Soldiers Returned To Native Land

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The President Roosevelt was to dock in Hoboken today bearing the bodies of seventy-five American war dead who have lain in hastily dug graves along the Trans-Siberian Railroad in Russia since death overtook them while they defended Archangel, Russia's northernmost seaport in 1918.

Plans included the meeting
of the liner by a flight of
planes and a destroyer, which
will escort the ship up the bay
past Governor's Island, where
from Ft. William, the national salute of twenty-one guns will
be given.

Military honors will be ren-

HUGE CUNARD LINER SINKS FERRY; SHIP FORCED INTO PORT

Repairs Will Force 870 Passengers To Change
Ships

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Cunard liner Mauretania, outbound for Europe with 870
passengers aboard, collided with a steel car ferry in the bay early here today, sending the ferry and twenty-eight freight cars to the bottom.

After the accident the Mauretania proceeded to Quarantine where an examination revealed two holes,
each about four by ten feet,
in the port side of her bow a trifle below her water line.
Officials declared the liner would return to her pier for repairs, and added that it might be necessary to place
the ship in dry dock. In all likelihood the passengers will have to disembark.

The Mauretania, under command of Captain S. G. S. McNeil, had passed the Statue of Liberty when the ferry loomed out of the dark.
The prow of the liner struck the stem of the car float squarely, sinking it immediately.

That no lives were lost is attributed to the quick thinking of the tug-boat crew who cut lines lashing the float to the ferry immediately.

The lone deck-hand aboard the ferry sensed his peril when he felt the craft sinking and leaped to the tug thereby saving his life.

Many of the 870 passengers aboard the liner were brought to the docks from their cabins by the shock of the collision, but it was apparent that the huge vessel was in no danger.

Captain McNeil brought the Mauretania to a quick stop by throwing his engines into reverse
and sent out a lifeboat which made for the tug, but the tug's captain assured the officer in charge that all aboard both the tug and ferry
were accounted for.

Although Captain McNeil reported to the Brooklyn navy yard that he had hit a "54-s, ferry across our bow off Stapleton with no lights," members of the crew of the tugboat state both the tug and ferry were carrying lights.

LEAPS FROM AUTO INTO TRAIN'S PATH

MARION, O., Nov. 28.—Burial arrangements were being made today for the body of Russell Shook, 21, of Morral a Marion County village. Shook was instantly killed when he fell under the wheels of an Erie passenger train locomotive
at the Kenton Avenue grade crossing here Wednesday night.

It was Marion's second auto-train
fatality in less than twenty hours.
Fearing that his brother, Clay,
who was driving, would be unable to beat the approaching train, Russell leaped out of the auto in which they were riding, falling in the path of the train.

Clay was not hurt, although the train hit the rear of the auto.
Lester Klingel, 22, was fatally hurt earlier in the day when his roadster plunged into a standing freight train south of Marion. His brother is in City Hospital with a broken right leg.

EXPUL STUDENTS AS TICKET SCALPERS

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Nov. 28.— Two Notre Dame students have been expelled from school by the Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, prefect of discipline, for scalping tickets to the Army game in New York Saturday, it was learned.
The expulsion came through the questioning of Max Cohen, New York ticket broker, according to police here.

TWO ESCAPE DEATH; PLANE HITS HOUSE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 28.—
At least two persons were burned to death and several others were injured here today when fire swept the Holland House, a downtown apartment hotel.

Police were checking the list of tenants to ascertain whether additional lives were lost in the destruction of the six story structure.

OBERLIN WINS LONG WAR AGAINST BAN

OBERLIN, O., Nov. 28.—Ten years of perseverance has at last won for Oberlin College students permission to dance until midnight.

The original ban ruled no dancing at all. Then the ban was lifted in a modified way ten years ago when the students were allowed to dance until 9:40 p. m. on Saturday nights.

Last year the faculty grew more lenient and ruled that the students could dance until 11 p. m. But the students still wanted more. So now the faculty has let up again and students may "on with the dance" until midnight.

THREE GET $41,000 IN EASY MONEY PLOT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—An "easy money" scheme, which turned out to be no better than the rest of them, today landed three men in jail charged with the theft of more than $41,000 from the Goff-Kirby Coal Co., over a five-year period.

The men were a triumvirate in a conspiracy, according to police, whereby they charged gasoline to the coal company and resold it to their own profit. Two of the men were garage employees of the coal company. The third was a gasoline station attendant.

Police stated that two of the men admitted their part in the conspiracy, saying "we had to get along somehow and it was easy money." The third denied his participation in the plot.

NORTHERN OHIO IS BACK OF PRESIDENT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28.—Carrying a keynote of optimism a message of assurance was to be sent to President Hoover today that more than $100,000,000 will be put to work in 1930 expansion programs and public improvements in this industrial empire of northern Ohio.

Plans, calling for this stupendous expenditure, were revealed here by 200 northern Ohio civil and business leaders who gathered here yesterday for a regional survey into the state of business and to poll their ideas in support of President Hoover's plea that the nation's business be kept on a steady keel to tide over disturbances which may have resulted from the stock market crash.

The survey, as taken from representatives from fifty-one cities and seventeen counties in northern Ohio disclosed that industry and political divisions of the state are eager to pour money, time, and effort into the Hoover prosperity movement.

All of the delegates to the conference went back to their homes today freshened with the command to "get something started." Projects already pledged to the prosperity movement by officials from such cities as Akron, Canton, Youngstown and others, will reach the towering total of $100,000,000.

What Price LAZY APPETITE

"Dear, are you not glad you followed my suggestion when I urged you to try S.S.S. for your lost appetite?"

HAVE you an indifference or loathing for food, or do you really enjoy mealtime?

Fads and fancies come and go. We must be reasonable. You can't afford to wreck your body by "killing" an appetite given you by Nature to nourish your body.

You must really enjoy your meals and assimilate them to restore the waste of the body. Don't expect a strong, sturdy body and a keen mind to carry on if you do not enjoy your food. It just can't be done. Friends, happiness and business success may depend on a keen appetite.

Many thousands have turned to S.S.S. when the appetite signaled danger. It is a time-tested remedy... purely vegetable. Easy to assimilate. Pleasant to take. It will do much to restore the natural appetite. It will not act instantly, but, be assured, when taken according to directions, it will usually bring back your desire to eat and enjoy your food. This you well know is the basic step for health. Simply reason it out for yourself and you will agree that it is the practical way.

And remember, S.S.S. will help you get your blood-cells back up to normal. Then that sluggish, in-town feeling and skin troubles will disappear. You should sleep soundly. Firm flesh should take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again. At all drug stores in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE TESTIMONY OF SCRIPTURE—Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which testify of me.—John 5:39.

OUR DIPLOMATIC CASUALTIES

William Phillips resigned recently as American minister to Canada, at the age of 51 and after 24 years in the foreign service. A fortnight before John Van Antwerp MacMurray resigned as minister to China, at the age of 48, after 22 years' service. The resignation of Ambassador Fletcher, at Rome, at the age of 56 and after 27 years in diplomatic life, was gazetted in June. All three of these outstanding officials were career men. The years of experienced service they were still capable of giving the country has been lost to it.

A good many years may have to elapse before the United States has a permanent foreign service that is in fact permanent. A beginning has been made; but a service hardly deserves to be called permanent from which resignations occur so frequently as they have in the American foreign service since the first of the year. We have no reserves of grizzled veterans, who know world politics from A to Z, with whom we can fill the most important posts abroad; and it looks as if we shall not have until our national attitude toward the diplomatic service radically changes.

Abroad, a diplomat is "somebody." A definite social rank attaches to his post, which is recognized by his fellow citizens; and he can look forward to a title or some other worth while recognition of work ably performed. We have no titles to offer. When an ambassador returns from his post, we extend to him the courtesy of the port; but after that he receives less attention from his democratic countrymen than a congressman. This absence of indirect compensations combines with shabby congressional treatment in the matter of direct compensations and allowances to make the foreign service, above a certain point, unattractive to outstanding men.

The result is that outside of the special field of China, where conditions demand specially trained men even more urgently than they do in most other countries, we are not keeping and using the men the nation has footed the bill to educate. Great Britain does the thing differently. Sir Esme Howard is retiring at the age limit; and it will be noted that the most important post in Great Britain's diplomatic service is to be filled by a career man. This country may not want a permanent foreign service; but if it does, that's the way to get one.

The practice of jailing addicts to habit-forming drugs is as barbarous as the treatment accorded the mentally diseased, a few generations ago; and it is to be hoped that the country will wake up to that fact sooner than it did to the cruelty to which the insane were subjected for centuries.

"China revolt ended." Good news, if true; but the Chinese have been fighting in a circle for so long that it is doubtful if they have discovered a way of squaring it.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—And now the talkies come along with the announcement that they have signed up no less a personage than—Santa Claus!

The old man has had a pretty tough time of it in Christmases gone and forgotten. He used to stand on wind-swept corners, stamping, mumbling and shivering behind a cascade of discouraged hempen whickers, and soiled, ill-fitting, red canton-flannel, tinkling an inadequate dinner bell in the service of the Salvation Army.

Then the Army threw him out and he drifted across to the big shops, where amid a shoreless waste of dolls and blocks and mechanical toys he sweated in his winter woollens. No more shivery corners or stifling top departments for the old fellow. From now on he'll sit at ease in his own snug quarters at the North Pole, pulling a long, black stogie, while he discants, on the air, of Yuletide in song and story.

BACKGROUND A-PLenty

Many of the Brethren of Broadway's Amperage have backgrounds of more than passing interest. There's Wallace Ford, "head man" in "The Nut Cracker," a play brought from Chicago. Left an orphan at the age of two, Wally was reared by a Liverpool fishmonger and his wife. At 13 he was chore boy on a ranch in Alberta, Canada. Tiring of the monotony of the life, he tramped to Winnipeg, where he got a job wiping engines. That didn't appeal to him for any length of time and he signed up as delivery clerk for a fashionable pill roller of the town. One blue and gold spring morning he dropped a bottle of castor oil on the top step of the druggist's wealthiest customer and an hour later found himself "at liberty." Next he donned the uniform of a theater usher and becoming stage-struck hooked up as super with a sidewalk stock company, where he learned the gentle art of make-up and the jargon of back-stage. Then he did what they all do. He headed for the Big Town. Finding Belasco, Shubert, Erlanger, Hopkirk, Billy Brady, Hammerstein and Ziegfeld with all the talent on hand they could possibly use, he whiled away the time waiting for an opening by washing dishes in a vegetarian Nose Bag. "Seventeen" was produced with grand success, big noise, heap big success.

A DREAM?

A news item tells us that Joe Graziano, Italian immigrant, out of an old pot, an ancient cook stove and a dream, has grown an invention which may put him in a class with the wealthy and the great. He is said to have discovered way to create a vapor from fuel oil that can be used instead of gasoline and give three times gasoline's mileage. Fuel oil can be had for 7 cents a gallon.

HARD TO WHIP

There is a lot of toughness in the fibre of the human. British babies are two pounds heavier on the average than they were 10 years ago. They are reported healthier. Fewer die at birth. Despite war, hard times and poverty, and all the things from which England has suffered and is suffering, the human being isn't whipped.

ROLLING TO RIO

An outstanding improvement in the Western Hemisphere which many now alive will live to see, will be a good road from North to South America. Today there is a completed road from Winnipeg, Canada, to Monterey, Mexico. It is said that next year the highway will be finished to the Mexican capital. The day will come when the road will be pushed south through Central America to the countries of South America. When the day comes that folks can drive back and forth between North and South America we shall all get along better.

RUSSIAN DRINKERS

Russia has been having an anti-alcoholic week put on by the Anti-Alcoholic society. For some reason the last days of the crusade were marked by an unusual number of arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. In Moscow there are 58 vodka stores, 145 beer halls, and 288 wine shops. Russians in a campaign to cut down drinking, apparently act much like Americans. They find a new desire to drink as soon as pressure is brought to stop it. Funny about folks.

Who's Who and Timely Views

By Arthur J. Weaver
Governor of Nebraska

(Arthur J. Weaver was born at Falls City, Neb., Nov. 18, 1873. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. Admitted to the bar in 1896, he practiced law at Falls City until 1904. Since 1905 he has engaged in fruit growing, grain and stock raising. He has been the president of several concerns. In 1899 he was a member of the Nebraska house of representatives. He was mayor of Falls City in 1915, and chairman of the Republican state convention in 1924. He became governor of Nebraska last January.)

THE known policies of President Hoover as to the necessity of completing at an early date the Mississippi valley system; because of the effects of the Panama canal on this region, are heartening to the west.

The issue could not be ignored, for the whole nation knows that it costs twice as much to ship products of the middle west to either coast as it costs to ship from one coast to the other. The barrier now existing can only be removed by giving the west an outlet to the sea.

The fact that for more than 100 years the waterway, the railway and the highway have all survived as dependable means for transportation, shows conclusively that they are not only useful, but indispensable.

The development of our inland waterways is imperative for the future growth and prosperity of both the agriculture and industry of the middle west, since the shift of the trade currents from the interior to the ocean, resulting from the operation of the Panama canal. This situation must now be equalized by developing the great natural Mississippi system of waterways.

This will restore the sectional equation. It will insure the future of the great agricultural region which produces America's raw materials, and will give to our people a greater and a just share of the national prosperity. The vast commerce of this region, as well as the potentiality of such a rich area, makes it imperative that it be placed on an equality as to transportation facilities and rates with other parts of the national domain.

A system of inland waterways in the Mississippi valley will save the farmers on all the grain produced in this area, approximately five cents to 12 cents a bushel. This would mean something on the 100,000,000 bushels of wheat produced annually in Kansas, on the vast output of the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota.

Who doubts that this would help solve our agricultural problem?

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

THERE is an art in Christmas giving which comes with a little time and thought expended in choosing your gifts. I often think that so many people merely rush about, picking up things here and there, and distributing them indiscriminately. This is such a pity, for the ideal gift should not only be suited to the receiver, but should also express the interest of the giver.

"It is not what we give, but what we share—For the gift without the giver is bare." So said one of our best poets—and it is well to remember this little verse.

Intimate feminine friends need not be a serious problem, for here one can give the luxurious bath and dressing table accessories so dear to every woman and often a little too extravagant for personal purchase.

Even the finer face powders, delicately scented, make charming presents. There are artistically designed powder jars, desirable on the boudoir vanity because of their highly decorative quality. Bath salts can be had in price ranging from the reasonable to the very expensive. French, Oriental and domestic—lightly or heavily scented—in every possible variety to suit every taste. These bath salts are generally put up in attractive vase-like containers, which, when empty, are still decorative assets. Together with a companion bath, tarts, they make a beautiful ensemble.

There are quite a few manufacturers who, around Christmas time, offer a special selection of exquisite richly embroidered, lacy sachets, which can carry the favorite scents of the person to receive them.

Even the most practical of accessories to daily living—soap—can be transformed into a pleasing gift if properly selected. There are, at present, innumerable soaps in a varying degree of costliness which most women would be glad to possess. Then, too, there are delightful washing preparations, beauty grains and such that really come in the category of beauty preparations. Imported soaps of costly caliber come in boxes of three, a half dozen, or twelve. There are English, French and even Oriental imported soaps to please the most discriminating.

The advantage of intimate giving of this nature is that you combine the useful with the beautiful. While some women like to receive elaborate, impractical gifts which delight them merely for the moment, most of them would really prefer (if they were given the choice) something which adds pleasure to everyday living.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Politicians never did believe that the Republican old guard liked President Hoover; that is to say, politically. Their opinion was that the old guard swallowed him because it had to, but did not relish him.

Be that as it may, it appears that President Hoover did not like the old guard! At any rate, not the old guardians in the senate, where the situation has been very annoying to the White House ever since last April.

Otherwise how account for the recent appearance in the senate of a young guard?—consisting of seceders from the old guard—which latter body always hitherto has considered itself as including all the Republican regulars, so called to distinguish them from the insurgent Republicans or Progressives.

To be sure, the young guardsmen claim to be regular, too, but specify that they are Hoover regulars, or the Hoover bloc, as some describe them. Not all, but most of them are senators in their first terms; so they are also referred to as freshmen. The Democrats, however, speak of them as young Turks—a designation which, of all others, is perhaps likeliest to stick if for no better reason than the freshest recent it.

And yet there are cynical folk who intimate that the young Turks are not especially Hooveristic; that they are more or less old guardsmen, as bad managers, rather than violently devoted to the White House; that all they care about is which side their own bread is buttered on.

Certainly such solons as Senators Deussen, Glenn, Goff, McCall, Oddie, Robinson of Indiana and Waterman look alike to ultra-conservative a platoon ever to be consistently depended on by the president, who has a few rather progressive streaks.

Senator McNary, apparently destined to be the young Turkish leader, probably will prove more dependable also Senators Allen, Sackett, Steiwer, Thomas of Idaho and Vandenberg—

very, very mild progressives.

Senator Fess, although a born old guardsman, has an overwhelming pro-White House complex, too—hard to say which has the stronger grip on him.

Senator Capper sounds dubious. He already has implied a slur on President Hoover's series of conferences to preserve prosperity, expressing a "hope" that a thought will be spared for agriculture's prosperity, as well as the industries.

Senators Goldsborough, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert (who may as well change his name to Herbert right now and get it over with, for that's the way it always is printed), Keen, McCulloch, Patterson, Townsend and Wolcott are too new to risk predictions on, but several of them have the mind of decided old guardsmen.

And, anyway, what good can it do President Hoover to have the young Turks at his beck and call, however faithful they may be to him, with the Progressive-Democratic coalition outnumbering both them and the old guard put together?

It is interesting, but that is about all it amounts to.

The G. O. P. side of the senate is now split three ways:

The old guard, 16; the young Turks, 24; the Progressives, 14.

But the Progressive flock, for the present, with the Democrats—39 of the latter, or a total of 54 for the coalition, counting Senator Shipstead, the lone Farmer-Laborite, who properly belongs to the combination—versus a total of 40 young Turks and old guardsmen, if they were united.

And the session opened with 56 nominal Republicans in the senate. There were seven out-and-out Progressives among them, but of these seven only two were definitely off the Hoover reservation; the rest were more or less prepared to play ball if things had gone to their liking.

And now look at the lineup! No wonder the young Turks complain of mismanagement. For that matter, the Democrats are split, too, if it ever comes to a showdown. In reality there are six parties in the senate, counting Farmer-Laborite Shipstead as one of them—and he ought to be, for, really there is more solidarity in his his group than in any of the others.

MENU HINT

Creamed Potatoes and Bacon Combination Salad
Apple Peach Custard Pie
Coffee

Here is a menu with very little meat and using up leftover potatoes. The pie is hearty, so you do not need many different dishes. This menu may be served at noon or as an evening supper.

Today's Recipes

Creamed Potatoes and Bacon—One cup finely chopped cooked bacon, two cups potatoes, cut in dice, three tablespoons crispings, three tablespoons flour, three-fourths cup water, one tablespoon minced parsley, one tablespoon minced green pepper, one-half tablespoon minced celery, salt and pepper. Add the chopped pepper, celery and parsley to the bacon drippings and cook slowly for a few minutes. Stir in the flour and then add all the liquid. Cook until thick and smooth. Add bacon and seasonings, then the cold potatoes. Cover and reheat over hot water or a low fire. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and paprika. Serve very hot.

Apple Peach Custard Pie—Two eggs, one pint milk, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon cornstarch, one teaspoon butter. Beat eggs, milk and dissolved cornstarch. Add sugar, egg and half fill them with applesauce made by steaming in a tightly covered pan four large apples with just enough water to cook them, and adding sugar and salt to taste. Put apples through a sieve when done, and add two tablespoons cream. Over this pour the custard and slice peaches or any other ripe or canned fruit on top. Cover with whipped cream or beaten egg whites. This makes two pies.

Combination Salad—Two cups shredded cabbage, two stalks celery, diced, one tomato, one teaspoon onion juice, one teaspoon catsup. Pare and cut tomato in small pieces. Mix all ingredients together with mayonnaise.

Meringues
Here are two recipes for meringues which add the final touch of deliciousness to the "open faced" pie of cream, lemon, etc.: Three egg whites, four tablespoons sugar, one-half cup shredded coconut. Beat the whites until stiff. Add the sugar and beat until creamy. Add the lemon extract and one-half the coconut. Roughly pile on top the filling. Sprinkle with the remaining coconut and bake in a very slow oven for 12 minutes. Cool and serve.

Two egg whites, stiffly beaten; four tablespoons confectioner's sugar. Add the sugar to the egg whites and beat until creamy. Roughly pile on top the filling. Bake in a slow oven for 12 minutes. Cool and serve.

SMART BOY

"Now, Charles," said the teacher, "if your father can do a piece of work in one hour and your mother can do it in one hour, how long would it take both of them to do it?"

Nutrition and Longevity

Even among the scientists there are those who believe that aside from a slight variation, the life span is an inherited characteristic; that if you come from long-lived ancestors, you will live (barring accidents—to a good old age; but if the reverse is true, nothing you can do will materially lengthen your life. Longevity, in other words, they believe to be an inherited characteristic.

But if, with care, a machine—for instance, an auto-oiled and fueled correctly, and its parts kept in good condition, can be kept running years longer than one of a similar make not kept in good condition, shouldn't the same reasoning apply to the human machine? Of course, there is no doubt that one can inherit tougher body cells that will better wear and tear, but just as abuse will counteract that characteristic, so will proper care accentuate it, and in the case of inherited weak cells, overcome any inherited tendency to short life.

Take this matter of fueling the human machine. It has long been recognized that inadequate and wrong diets over any period may lower resistance so that diseases may follow and life be shortened. And it certainly is reasonable to believe that the right diet can do the reverse. Now we have some scientific data supporting the premise, Dr. H. C. Sherman, of Columbia university, a famous expert in nutrition, carried out some studies on two groups of some 400 rats of the same heredity. Both groups lived under the same conditions with the exception of the diet. One group had a nutritionally adequate diet; that is, one which kept them normal in every way, and they lived their natural span of life. The diet consisted of one-sixth dry milk powder and five-sixths whole ground wheat. The other group had a little different diet, and they lived 10 per cent longer. What was this miracle-working difference? Simply a larger proportion of milk. They received two-sixths dry milk powder and four-sixths ground whole wheat.

This experiment is of great significance. It shows that even an adequate diet can be greatly improved. In this case, it shows again the very valuable properties of milk.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I wish every married couple, happy and unhappy, could see George Arliss' play, "Disraeli." He has played it on the stage and the screen version is just out. It portrays marriage that is a real union of souls. A wife who has her husband's interest so intensely at heart that she suffers the agony of a crushed finger rather than bother him on the eve of an important speech.

And a husband who adored his wife and so appreciated her love and care of him that when she is too ill to accompany him to a brilliant reception given in his honor, which he must attend, and the doctor says he will send him a wire if there is any change for the worse and he can be home in a few hours, he exclaims: "Mary is my home. If she dies I will have no home."

Happy married people will be happier for seeing it, and those who are not, may be influenced to try to make a success of their unions.

After seeing the picture I read this letter:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am coming to you again to see if you can help me. I'm a married woman. I've been going with a married man. We've been going together for the last five years. I know he liked me before, but now he has met a girl. They are crazy about each other. He tells me he doesn't go with her, but he lies to me. His wife knows about him."

"Virginia Lee, I love him so much I don't know what to do. I've got him on my mind night and day. Please help me, Virginia Lee, and tell me what to do, because I'm not happy with my husband. That's why I got attached to him. Can you tell me what the other girl has done to him to make him like her? She is another."

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

"This is what I call fun," said Biffer, who was bubbling over with spirits. "Dad is so afraid I am going to do something terrible that he hardly ever lets me go off by myself, and as for mother—she fusses over me so that I can scarcely get out of her sight. They forget that I am almost a grown beetle now, or I will be in a few months, anyway."

"Hey, there! Who is that ahead of us?"

"I don't see anyone," said Peter, but he had no sooner spoken than he did catch sight of a strange figure standing motionless by the side of the path. At first he had taken it for a stone. As they came nearer Peter saw, to his surprise, that it was a great, dark beetle that was standing bolt upright on its hind legs, with its front legs clasped over its head.

"Sssh! Don't let him hear you," whispered the little beetle. "He's the Holy Man of Beetland, and whenever any of us meet him, he must be very polite to him, because he is very wise and good. When we are in trouble and don't know what to do we go to him and he will tell us. He is praying now, you know, and we must not disturb him. But let take off our hats as we go by."

"Oh, we don't all need to do it, my country," said Biffer, in the same low tone, "and I am glad that we don't, for I know my clay would ache."

By this time they were upon the Praying Beetle and were looking at his hats in hand, and on their Peter could not be certain but that thought Biffer looked a little frightened.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

"The song is ended but the melody lingers on."

Vivid memories of a brilliant pigskin career will be left behind when that rampant ghost of Harold "Red" Grange, none other than Christian Keener "Red" Cagle, of the U. S. Military Academy, sows away his football togs late Saturday afternoon, having consummated his four-year football career at West Point.

Just like his sorrel-thatched Illinois predecessor, Cagle will be acclaimed one of the great All-American halfbacks of all time. Cagle's last appearance in an Army uniform will be against the undefeated riders of Notre Dame.

Although "Red" will be gone his memory will linger on in association with the names of other Army stars of by-gone days, Oliphant, Marillat, McEwan, Daly, Garbisch, Hunter and his former teammate, "Light Horse" Harry Wilson.

Cagle, captain of this year's Army team, first crashed the headlines in 1926 as Harry Wilson's running mate and is now rated as one of the most capable broken field runners and forward passers that ever graced the Army line-up.

When his football make-up was esconced among the moth balls other sports immediately engaged the attention of Cagle, who is a versatile athlete and has never been found out of the plink of condition.

His endurance and ability to combat the fiercest opposition as a regular in the backfield was shown in the 21 to 21 contest with Navy at Chicago several years ago. This game, incidentally, firmly established his reputation as a comer.

His efforts continued to bear fruit in 1927 and 1928. As a matter of fact Cagle was chosen in the backfield on the All-American mythical team last season. The present season is consequently something of an anticlimax for the red-head but there are many who believe he will again receive All-American recognition.

Cagle's fine gridiron exploits again this fall are noteworthy in view of the fact he has been an outstanding star for three straight years. What we mean to get at, in our groping way, is that opposing linemen "lay" for him and considerably handicap his efforts to get away for those long runs for which he is noted. To offset this evil, Cagle has resorted more frequently this season to forward passes and by his deadly tosses has been able to circumvent the opposition's plans almost as well.

A ruling that eighth graders of schools having small enrollments have the same right to be candidates for the high school basketball team as upper classmen, has been handed down by Commissioner Townsend, of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, it is learned.

Providing they are sufficiently good to make the team, the eighth graders, under terms of the ruling, are entitled to play on the high school team without losing their right to four more years of competition when they enter high school.

This ruling entitles the more talented basketball players to five years of high school competition, providing, however, such students have been properly certified by the local school superintendent to the state association when they are still in their eighth grade of school.

This decision is particularly agreeable to Caesar Creek Twp. High School, where this fall most of the candidates for the boys' and girls' court teams are being drawn from the freshman, sophomore classes and the eighth grade. It is declared by school officials that several of the eighth graders may make the high school first teams.

The old wooden gymnasium which has been a part of the athletic equipment at Wittenberg College since the coming of the present century is being torn down following the recent dedication of the Lutheran school's new $400,000 physical education building. The old structure will live in memory among Wittenbergers, however, as the gym which was the home of the undefeated Lutheran teams of 1918, 1919 and 1920.

BOWERSVILLE AND ROSS DIVIDE TWO

Bowersville and Ross Twp. High School boys' and girls' basketball teams divided a double-header on the Bowersville floor Wednesday night.

For the first time in the school's history the Bowersville girls' sextet defeated Ross' feminine tossers by a margin of 29 to 22 in the preliminary. Ross boys made amends, however, by winning their game 34 to 28 after a close struggle.

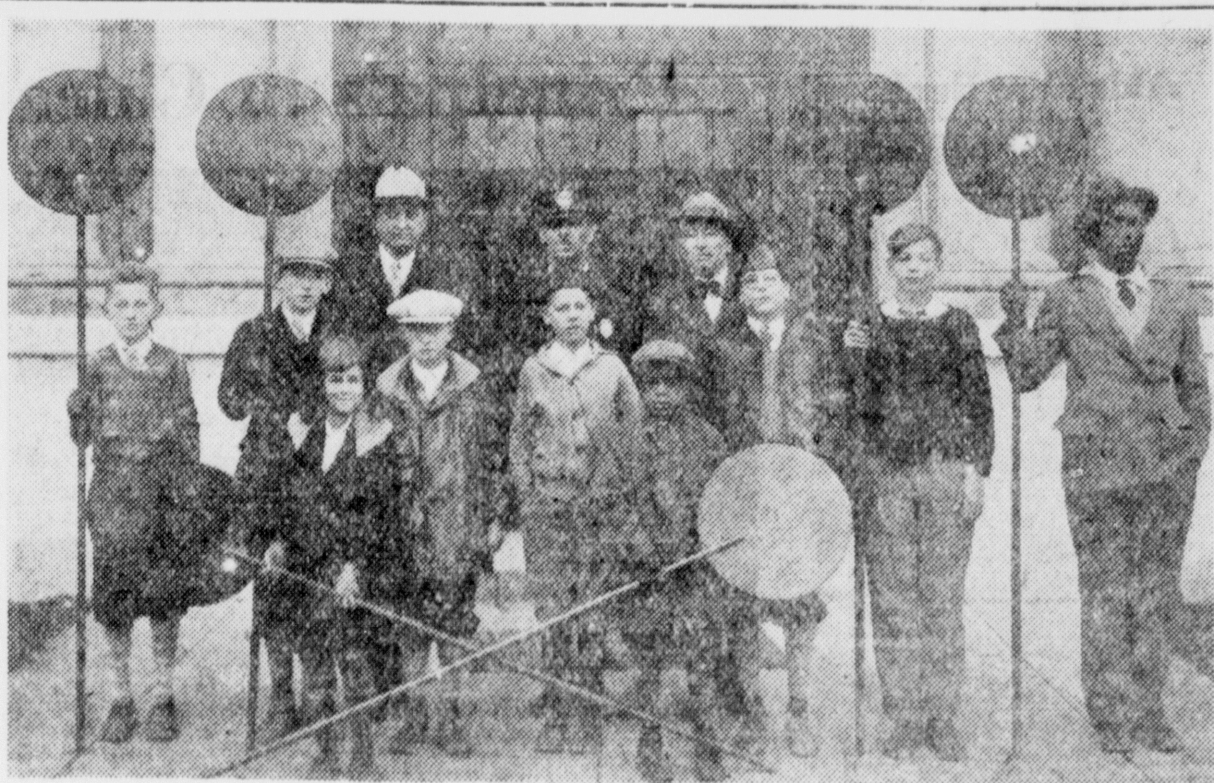

Bowersville teams appear on the Jamestown floor Friday, December 6.

SAFETY FIRST

CHARDON, O., Nov. 28.—Geauga County has started a strenuous campaign to protect its school children.

The new school code requires that school buses shall be marked front and rear and that vehicles going in the same direction as the bus must stop when the bus stops and not start again until the bus resumes.

JUNIOR "SAFETY PATROL" REORGANIZED HERE

WITH re-organization of a Junior "Safety Patrol" under the direction of Xenia public and parochial school officials, steps are being taken to make street crossing intersections safer for school children.

The patrol was revived this fall by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, with the cooperation of Mayor Karl R. Babb and Louis Hammerle, city school superintendent.

Pictured in the above photo, in addition to the three officials who have been the moving spirits in the plan, are nine school children who have been designated to act as junior safety cops. Six of the boys are displaying traffic signs with which members of the patrol have been equipped for their crossing duty.

The signs caution motorists to drive carefully at intersections in the vicinity of schools in order to avoid accidents.

The second picture shows Chas. Babb, son of Mayor Babb, and one of the appointed junior officers, stationed at the Whiteman-Church St. Intersection, giving an idea how the plan operates. The patrol was started a year ago but later permitted to be abandoned. Such a safety patrol has been maintained ever since that time however, at St. Bridget School, according to the Rev. David Powers, The dangerous "Five Points," formed by the intersection of Second and West Sts., and Cincinnati Ave. have been guarded by two school boys at all times when children were leaving or entering the building.

JAMESTOWN SPLITS DUEL AT BELLBROOK

A basketball double-header between the boys' and girls' court teams of Jamestown and Bellbrook High Schools on the Bellbrook floor Wednesday night resulted in a 35 to 12 victory for Bellbrook girls in the preliminary and an impressive 14 to 11 victory for Jamestown boys. The score of the boys' game was tied at 6 to 6 at the half.

XENIAN HURT WHEN AUTO LEAVES ROAD AND LANDS IN DITCH

Charles McFarland, member of the firm of Purdon and McFarland, auto agency at 50 E. Main St., was painfully injured when the auto in which he was riding with David L. Purdon skidded off the Jamestown Pike, slid down a nine-foot embankment and turned over in a ditch Wednesday morning.

The accident occurred on the Johnson hill, half a mile from Jamestown and three autos, being driven up that hill, skidded on the slippery highway and fell down embankments within a space of an hour and a half Wednesday morning.

McFarland suffered excruciating pain but an X-ray examination made at the offices of Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, where he was taken, showed that his neck was not broken, as it was first believed. Later he was removed to McChelton Hospital, this city, where a further examination was made to determine the extent of his injuries. He was resting comfortably Thursday, hospital attaches said. Purdon was not injured.

Late Wednesday morning an unidentified man received a leg injury and cuts on one hand when the car in which he was riding went down an embankment near the same point. Shortly afterward a woman driving from Dayton to Chillicothe escaped injury when her machine skidded and turned over on the opposite side of the road on the hill.

Principals in Chicago Triangle

A few years ago, the triangle which carried Ruth Snyder to the electric chair, her husband murdered and Judd Gray, the dapper salesman, to share the fate of his partner in crime, evoked extreme interest in the East. From Chicago comes a similar triangle which has led Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien and William Dorr to a prison cell, charged with shooting her husband, William O'Brien. The husband is not expected to live as the result of three gunshot wounds. At the extreme left is Samuel Howard Dorr, Chicago Insurance salesman. # INVENTOR OF ODD SHOES SEES WALK OVER ENGLISH CHANNEL

Happy Hazzard on his water shoes

CANTON, O., Nov. 28.—He's so fond of walking that he's going to start on a little stroll across the English channel.

J. (Happy) Hazzard has had a hankering for walking across the English channel for many years. Some folks told him he couldn't do it, because walking on water was not being done these days.

"I'll bet I can," Hazzard told them. "It's all a question of wearing the right kind of shoes." And so Hazzard at his home here has perfected the strangest pair of shoes a man ever wore.

They're called Happy Hazzard's water shoes and they are guaranteed to enable a man to walk on water with the sprightliness of walking on land.

Hazzard knows they are magic shoes because he has taken strolls on the surface of many streams in this section. He walks up and down the stream sometimes at a brisk pace and sometimes very leisurely—if he wants to enjoy the scenery.

Hazzard has been working on those water shoes for five years and he has them so perfected now that he is confident they will permit him to stroll over the choppy waves of the channel that separate England from France.

The water shoes look something like large footballs when they are

point, and goes forth to stroll along the surface of the creek.

Hazzard is having his water shoes patented. If his channel stroll is successful, then he's going to allow his magic shoes to be sold.

What will they be good for?

"Why fishermen can sneak up on a fish without all the disturbance a boat makes." And for aquatic sports they will unfold a world of amusement, he suggests.

"I imagine I'll be walking across the channel sometime in June," he said. "As long as the waves are with me I know I can walk, but if they happen to be against me I don't know what will happen."

In the Michigan stadium. That was the skeleton of the experience but the best part of it was meeting these Michigan folk in person and talking to them about the things that interest all of us.

When I got a helpless and polite audience in front of me, of course I talked about pirates and buried treasure, as is customary with me. But the Michigan folk are versatile in their interests, and they made me happy by coming around after the talk and asking to see and handle my pieces of eight and my lone doubloon, which I have collected while acting as a connoisseur of sunken galleons and buried loot. That was a fine start.

In New York live some of the best people in the world. But in New York even the best people in the world are a little shy about making new friends. One sees so many people every day. And one has learned that not all of these people are suitable for friendships. There are many other reasons why to New Yorker is a little less than cordial when circumstance or business forces him to bow and formally salute a new acquaintance.

In Michigan, as in other western states, it is different. The human qualities have a better opportunity to assert themselves. The change of atmosphere was a tonic for me. I'm sure I met a hundred people in Michigan with whom I'd like to be much better acquainted. They are the kind of folk you like to have

living next door on a wide street, with lawns and separate garages. I imagine you don't have to hire entertainers to make them happy when you invite them to your home for an evening. And I'm sure you don't have to have a bartender to mix the drinks for them. They seem to be reasonably happy on water and home-made coffee and tea.

My alma mater, so I can say without egotism that it is one big school that retains personality, quality and something of a college atmosphere. I don't know where you can find better people for a university than Dr. J. S. Reeves, professor of political science; Dr. W. W. Bishop, librarian; Dr. Randolph G. Adams, librarian at the Clements library; Prof. John L. Brumm of the department of journalism and a dozen others whom I was lucky enough to meet.

These are the modern university people, who don't hide in their whiskers, talk Latin in their sleep, or look wonderingly and disapprovingly out upon the wide world outside the campus. They have scholarship and dignity where and when these qualities are needed, and at other times and places they can forget these things and be Michiganders still.

The Theater

Mildred Harris, motion picture player and former wife of Charles Chaplin, has filed suit for divorce in Hollywood from Everett Terrence MacGovern, Florida real estate man and prominent amateur golfer. Her motion picture career is blamed.

"He's mean," she says. "He doesn't like my playing in pictures and I've been in pictures since I was nine years old. Besides he wanted me to live in the East and I was reared here.

"It was just a case of talking different languages. I mean, motion pictures are my life work and I can't let even my husband interfere. I mean our marriage just wouldn't click."

Miss Harris alleged that MacGovern deserted her without cause on October 30, 1926. They were married in April, 1924. She asks for the custody of Everett John MacGovern, four-year-old son of the couple. According to the divorce complaint, MacGovern receives an income from an estate.

When she sued for divorce from Chaplin some years ago Miss Harris claimed that the comedian's "film genius" caused him to be moody and to inflict mental cruelties upon her.

Grace's four-installment article, "The Flying Squadron of Death," which ran in the Saturday Evening Post not so long ago, is the latest literary lion in blouse New York.

Grace was an army flyer during the war and found it hard to settle down to hum-drum existence after the big push. He joined a flying circus, which eventually found its way to Hollywood. When it left, it was without Dick Grace, who had joined the film colony.

He soon became known as a double for film actors who was absolutely fearless and who would attempt anything, specializing in airplane work. He was generally accepted in the colony and earned a meagre wage, but managed to get along.

His article described the most daring air feats imaginable—stunt crashes for some of the biggest air pictures made, including "Lilac Time," "Wings," and others. In these he would be engaged by contract to "crack-up" several planes in the same picture, and do each in a way that it could be photographed well for the picture.

Grace broke his neck down in Texas doing a stunt for "Wings," but even that didn't kill him. He
